Adjunct Assistant Professor
The Department of Architecture at the University of Texas at San Antonio invites qualified individuals to apply for a non-tenure-track position in (digital) design, theory, and criticism at the rank of Adjunct Assistant Professor, beginning in Fall 2017.

Successful candidates for this position will be expected to teach upper level undergraduate design studios and other courses assigned.

Requirements
The minimum degree requirement for this position is a Master’s degree in Architecture or related discipline. Preferred qualifications include a Ph.D., professional registration, and design research or previous teaching experience at another institution.

The Department of Architecture offers fully accredited degree programs in Architecture (M. Arch) and Interior Design (BS Interior Design) and a research degree, an MS in Architecture with two concentrations: Historic Preservation and Sustainable Architecture. The department is housed within the College of Architecture, Construction, and Planning (CACP) which has programs in Construction Science and Management (BSCSM), Urban and Regional Planning (MSURP), Certificates in Historic Preservation and Urban and Regional Planning, and two research centers: the Center for Cultural Sustainability and the Center for Urban and Regional Planning Research. With 800 undergraduate and graduate students, the CACP is supported by full-time faculty members and adjunct faculty drawn from the local design and construction community. The CACP is located in downtown San Antonio, one of America’s oldest and most culturally diverse cities where design, construction and research find unique topics of inquiry. The College’s faculty is committed to research, scholarship, and teaching, and to building an institution that fosters intellectual excellence and collegiality.
